Additional majors approved by state

Bringing Rochester College one step closer to the addition of new majors in English and music, the Michigan Department of Education recently confirmed placement of the proposed majors under current degree approvals.

“We presently have nearly a hundred students pursuing degrees in education,” stated Dr. Michael Westerfield, vice president for academic affairs. “Of that number, almost half are planning to certify in either English or music. Consequently, the addition of majors in those areas is a high priority for us.”

In a January meeting with Dr. Ken Hanson, state specialist on accreditation and approval, college officials confirmed that current approvals for the Bachelor of Science degree are not restricted. “New majors may be added to that degree title without the need for further approval from the Michigan Department of Education,” stated Mr. Hanson.

With the support of the state, the college next approached the North Central Association. “Our present relationship with North Central requires us to go to them for the addition of any new majors,” Dr. Westerfield noted.

“When we contacted the North Central Association about the proposed majors, our liaison recommended that we request a focused visit to review the programs and to request removal of stipulations,” stated Dr. Ken Johnson, president of the college.

“If our request is approved, it will allow us to add majors as we are able without having to obtain North Central approval for each individual major.”

“We have scheduled a focused visit for April 14-15, and the NCA Commission will act upon our team’s recommendation later this summer,” Dr. Westerfield continued.

“In the meantime, we are increasing our library acquisitions to support the new programs and have already hired two additional faculty members.

“Initially, we plan to add majors in English and music,” Dr. Westerfield stated. “However, in our strategic plan we are projecting the addition of majors in history, communication, general science, and mathematics. Although all of these majors are designed to serve the needs of our education students, they also will provide options for students who seek a variety of employment opportunities beyond teaching.”

“During the past eight years, Rochester College has made a transition to senior college status,” stated Dr. Ken Johnson, president of the college. “We have chosen majors that we can deliver with quality, while meeting the needs of the greatest number of students.”

At the opening of the year, 90% of the students with declared majors were enrolled in four-year programs offered by Rochester College. The largest number selected management concentrations under the Bachelor of Business Administration degree. Human services concentrations and the cooperative program in education drew equal numbers of students. The remainder chose concentrations under the Christian vocation.

“We are finally at the point where more students are transferring to rather than from Rochester College,” noted Dr. Johnson.

“As we position ourselves for the next decade, we are confident that we will be able to serve an even greater number of students with our new academic programs.”
Great Lakes region rallies in support of the college

Dear Friends,

Across the Great Lakes region exists a fantastic spirit among the constituency of Rochester College. After decades of effort, there is widespread satisfaction that the college’s rate of progress is increasing, thanks to many who labored on the foundation for four decades.

This satisfaction has contributed to record enrollment, record levels of gift income, and a wonderful, positive sense of community. As I travel the region, I am tremendously pleased with the heightened attention to Rochester College as a provider of quality, career-focused academic programs in an environment that strengthens faith.

First and fundamental to our work is our most widely used textbook - the Bible. Every student uses scripture for a textbook. Bible. Every student uses scripture for a textbook in their Christian faith core of classes. Second most fundamental to our work is our most widely used textbook - the Bible. Every student uses scripture for a textbook.

When the college began offering a bachelor’s degree in Bible in 1980, only a few alumni served as ministers in Michigan Churches of Christ. Now, alumni serve in ministerial roles at twenty-eight congregations in the state. “Our program attracts students with a wide range of interests,” noted Dr. Storm. “Even though our youth ministry option is now the most popular, Christian ministry and biblical studies each enroll nearly as many students.”

Rochester College is completing a new strategic plan for the next five years. In that plan, the College of Religion has projected the development of a missions major.

“Rochester College created a safe, Christian environment for me to grow and explore my faith.”

Psi Chi accepts charter

Psi Chi, a national honor society in psychology, recently approved institutional membership for Rochester College. As a result, the college will charter a campus chapter during the fall semester, joining over 900 colleges and universities across the nation.

“For years we maintained a chapter of Psi Beta, an honor society for two-year institutions,” stated Dr. Ben Noah, sponsor of the organization. “Our move to Psi Chi was unique in that we were the first college ever to upgrade from Psi Beta to Psi Chi, affiliating us with four-year colleges and graduate schools.”

Founded in 1929, Psi Chi exists to encourage, stimulate, and maintain excellence in scholarship, and to advance the science of psychology. Psi Chi is a member of the Association of College Honor Societies and is an affiliate of the American Psychological Association, and the American Psychological Society.

“Not only does membership in Psi Chi look great on an application to graduate school, but also on a resume” stated Dr. Noah. “It opens the door for additional student scholarships and even provides a source of networking for employment.”

In coming months, the Rochester College chapter plans to host speakers from the profession. Eventually, they hope to participate in the national Adopt-a-Shelter program.

Charter members of the Rochester College chapter include Stacey Bowers, Clarkston, MI; Audra Campbell, Indianapolis, IN; Katherine Deines, Timi, MI; David Handley, Jackson, MI; Katrina King, Pontiac, MI; Helen Kreechayak, Harrison, MI; Melissa Lock, Port Colborne, ON; Margaret Majewski, Rochester Hills, MI; Heather May, Sutridge, ON; Steve Ostrowski, Auburn Hills, MI; Angela Qualls, Plainfield, IN; and Kelly Quinn, Woodside, ON.

College tops list of ministry majors

Rochester College topped a significant category in a January enrollment report of the Christian Chronicle. Figures revealed that Rochester College has the largest percentage of undergraduate ministry majors among liberal arts colleges affiliated with churches of Christ. Thirteen percent of the current student body lists a ministry major.

“For nearly forty years, Rochester College has remained faithful to its heritage of training students for service in the ministry,” stated Dr. Melvin Storm, director of the College of Religion. “The strength of our program is reflected in the number of alumni and students choosing a ministry major on our campus.”

When the college began offering a bachelor’s degree in Bible in 1980, only a few alumni served as ministers in Michigan Churches of Christ. Now, alumni serve in ministerial roles at twenty-eight congregations in the state. “Our program attracts students with a wide range of interests,” noted Dr. Storm. “Even though our youth ministry option is now the most popular, Christian ministry and biblical studies each enroll nearly as many students.”

Why RC?

Why does Rochester College exist? Because of students like Angie!

Angie Qualls is a senior behavioral sciences major from Plainfield, Indiana. Her father and mother also attended the college.

“As a seventeen-year-old freshman, I still had a lot to learn,” Angie commented. “Rochester College created a safe, Christian environment for me to grow and explore my faith.”

A regular participant in Celebration in Song, Angie is also president of her social club. She has performed with the A Cappella Chorus, represented her class at Homecoming, and been initiated into Psi Chi.

“As I look back on my time at Rochester College, I can’t think of any place that would have been better or more beneficial for me.”
Employee Highlights

Assisting the M-21 Church of Christ in Corunna, Michigan, while they search for a minister, Elton Albright, director of church relations, has been preaching to the congregation on a regular basis since December.

Often invited to speak on a variety of special occasions, Dr. David Fleer, associate professor of religion, began the calendar year by speaking at a Central Ohio preacher’s meeting. Later in the month, he taught a special class on Acts at the Southside Church of Christ in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and spoke at a winter camp session for the Metropolitan Detroit Youth Chorus.

Chairing a team from the North Central Association, Dr. Michael Westerfield, vice president for academic affairs, visited the American Indian College of Phoenix in February. In March, he spoke at a Teacher’s Banquet for the Sunset Church of Christ in Taylor, Michigan, and chaired a consultant-valuator session at the annual meeting of the North Central Association in Chicago, Illinois.

Based upon student recommendations, Who’s Who Among America’s Teachers recently named Dr. Ben Noah, assistant professor of counseling, and Sarah Reddick, assistant professor of social work, to appear in their 1986 edition.

Student eyes Olympics

Holding both a gold and silver medal from the State of Michigan Qualifying Tournament, Manuel Florescu is now ready to demonstrate his Tae Kwon Do skills at the U.S. National Tournament in May. The junior Christian service major from Romania even would like to compete on the U.S. Olympics team.

“If I am successful at the National Tournament in Iowa, I will then be eligible for the U.S. National Team trials in July,” stated Manuel. “The national team represents the U.S. in all international games, competing for the world championship title.

“Since the Olympic games occur only once every four years, the national team provides training and competition for the remainder of the time,” Manuel continued. “Most members of the Olympic team are selected from the national team.”

Fluent in Romanian, English, Japanese, Hungarian, and Greek, Manuel has lived in seven nations. He competed with the Romanian and Greek national teams before arriving in the United States. He enrolled at Rochester College last fall after completing a diploma at the Sunset International Bible Institute.

A favorite among the students, Manuel recently baptized a fellow student from Japan who was raised in a Buddhist home. His fluency in Japanese gave him the opportunity to study with the girl in her native language.

“At Rochester College I have found encouragement, understanding, and friendship,” stated Manuel. “I have received a lot of support and trust, while assuming personal responsibilities and accomplishing my goals.”

God was drawing these people to Him, but at the same time He was pulling me out of my comfort zone to do His work.”

Based upon the response of both the recipients and the students, the group decided to begin revisiting the shelter on a bimonthly basis. When a member of the Traverse City Church of Christ heard of the group’s efforts, he donated an entire cow, which he had butchered for use in preparing the meals.

“We see a definite response from our efforts,” stated David.

Club members receive guidance from Terry Pitts as they prepare chile for a winter meal on the Cass Corridor.

Student begins inner city effort among homeless

Enlightenment, a new campus organization dedicated to sharing the light of the gospel with the needy, initiated an inner city mission effort during the fall semester. The group quickly attracted the interest of a number of students with a desire to help individuals in need.

“People are suffering and do not have the gospel,” stated David Brown, president of the organization. “When considering where we should begin our efforts, we chose the Cass Corridor, one of the poorest districts in the heart of Detroit.”

Just prior to Thanksgiving, members of Enlightenment arranged to provide and serve a turkey dinner in a shelter for the homeless on the Cass Corridor.

“The discouraging atmosphere of the shelter quickly turned into a positive evening for everyone,” David stated.

“While setting up for the meal, we sang, someone spoke, and then we prayed for the food,” David recalled. “We then continued to sing and visit with the people during the meal.”

“I met people who were physically hungry and spiritually starving,” stated Vanessa Moncy, a freshman from Midland, Texas. “A lady came up to me and said, ‘Let’s have us some prayer.’ I was beaming from the inside out. That is how God works.”

“God used that night to plant seeds in those people,” Vanessa continued. “I felt that night fully refreshed in the joy of the Lord.

Originally, we were concerned about follow-up with the people we met. Then, the Trumbull Avenue Church of Christ in Detroit offered to work with the prospects that we found. Trumbull Avenue even has a counselor with addiction training, so we feel good about their participation.”

In another phase of their efforts, Enlightenment is working with Michigan Christian Youth Camp to sponsor a number of orphans and disadvantaged children for a week of camp. The group hopes to not only provide funds for campers, but also a number of workers who will donate a week of their summer to work with the children.

“We simply want people to see God through the members of Enlightenment,” David commented. “Our projects are a way to meet the needs of people and share the gospel message with them.”

“Traditionally, our students have a heart for service,” stated Dr. Ken Johnson, president of the college. “We are thrilled to see Enlightenment become a moving force on our campus.”

The infrastructure of the Kingdom of God on earth is made up of people - all kinds of people (Matthew 13). Individually, we have all sorts of differences that make each of us unique before God. Some are strong, some are weak, some are healthy, some are sick, some are young and learning, others are old, and some are mature. Whatever the state of each individual, the strength of the Kingdom does not lie solely in individuals but also in the strength of relationship that binds Kingdom-persons together.

For our youth to learn - to really learn - how to build the Kingdom by holding hands with persons unlike themselves, we who are older and more mature must not only teach but must also lead them into relationship and service.

Routinely, our students are involved, under mature leadership, in projects or ministries that carry the good news of our Master into varied market places of life. Over spring break, a group of students from Rochester College went to Petosky, Michigan, to assist a small church. This year, many have been involved in a project to feed and teach a group of homeless persons in Detroit’s Cass Corridor, a notoriously challenging area. Many others are now raising funds for summer evangelistic campaigns in foreign lands.

In these partnering efforts, our emerging leaders learn the value of relationship. Christians need each other. We need positive, encouraging relationships among ourselves, as we wear ourselves out battling Satan and the powers of evil.

Weekend College adds second major

Based upon a strong response to Weekend College and inquiries from students, Rochester College recently announced the addition of a second accelerated program for working adults. On July 17, the College of Extended Learning will begin a weekend program leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in behavioral science.

“Now that Weekend College is off the ground, we are getting a lot of phone inquiries,” stated Angela Hazel, director of the College of Extended Learning. “With advertising, we already have about fifteen students ready to begin the behavioral science program in July.”

The format of the new program will be identical to the management degree initiated last summer. A typical student will take three courses per session and attend classes on alternate weekends, allowing them to complete their program in as little as seventeen months.

“Our program will differ from the management major in that it will be geared specifically for students intending to go on for graduate studies,” noted Mrs. Hazel. “Even though both are accelerated programs, the behavioral science major will emphasize the development of the research skills required for graduate programs in counseling, psychology, and social work.”

“We have talked with a lot of people who will be able to convert work experience into credit,” Mrs. Hazel continued. “Many of them have worked in inpatient mental health hospitals, abuse recovery facilities, and human services administration, but are not able to advance in their professions without a degree.”

By the end of the summer, the College of Extended Learning projects an enrollment of about ninety students in the Weekend College program. The first cohort of Weekend College, which began classes last summer, will graduate in December of 1999.

“At very limited promotion, Weekend College has developed very rapidly,” stated Mrs. Hazel. “The students are very pleased with the program and are continually referring their friends and coworkers to us.”

Teams play in nationals

Based upon power ratings for their 1997-98 seasons, both the men’s and women’s basketball teams earned bids to their respective national tournaments. The teams traveled together to Salina, Kansas, for the events.

“Our win-loss record during the season was not as high as usual, but we played games with three NCAA division I institutions, seven NCAA division II teams, and three NAIA schools that were ranked during the season,” stated Garth Pleasant, head coach of the men’s team. “Some of our losses were close. We tied Oakland University with forty seconds on the clock, and did the same with Northwood University with a minute to go.”

At the national tournament, the men’s team entered as the ninth seeded team. While defeating Central Maine Tech, Kansas Wesleyan, and St. Mary’s College, a loss to Blackburn College in the second round placed the Warriors in eighth position. Freshman Bruce Nagel was selected to the first team and won All-American honors from the NSCAA.

“Within a year or two, we still hope to join the NAIA,” stated Coach Pleasant. “One of the NAIA conferences is interested in having us join their league, but probably will first require us to have a consistent home court in our own athletic center.”

College officials are including cross-pollination with the baseball program in the next strategic plan. Possible partners for the project currently are being considered.

Molding Futures ...

Good instructors are the heart of a quality academic program. The lives of students at Rochester College are molded not only through the experiences in the classroom, but by individual attention and personal relationships with instructors. Some of the outstanding faculty members that serve the students of Rochester College are introduced below.

Joining the full-time faculty in January as chairman of the Behavioral Science Department, Brian Stogner previously taught at the University of Michigan in Flint and served on the adjunct faculty of Rochester College. An alumnus of the college, he holds a bachelor’s degree from the University of Michigan and a master’s degree from Wayne State University. He will receive his doctorate from Wayne State this summer. In addition to his work at the college, he is a consulting neuropsychologist for the Genesys Regional Medical Center in Flint, Michigan, specializing in cases dealing with head injuries, strokes, and other related medical problems.

After serving in the United States Air Force and as minister of the Flushing Church of Christ, Michael Light, instructor of history, completed his bachelor’s degree from Rochester College in 1981. He then served as an admissions counselor, coached cross country and track, and taught part-time for the college until joining the full-time faculty in 1993. He also holds a master’s degree from Oakland University and will begin a doctoral program at Wayne State University in the fall.

For building strong relationships with her students, Gail Strickler, assistant professor of business, obtained her bachelor’s degree from Lipscomb University and her master’s degree in management from Walsh College. She worked as a coordinator for Westwood Springs, an apartment complex near Chicago, before moving to Michigan. Mrs. Strickler began teaching for Rochester College in 1990.

Lessons From the Scriptures

Opening night of the 1997 lectureship packed the auditorium of the Rochester Church of Christ. Enthusiasm for the annual event ran high as the week continued and as planners began finalizing the program and speakers for next fall.

"By the time last year’s program ended, we already had most of our speakers in place for next year," stated Doug Edwards, coordinator of the event. "Our Bible faculty is excited about the response to last year’s program, and has actually started on 1999!"

The fall lectureship will open on Sunday evening, October 4, with another area-wide worship service. "A record crowd of 1,055 packed the building last year, and we again expect to overflow the building," stated Mr. Edwards.

As part of the area-wide worship service, Dr. David Davenport, president of Pepperdine University, will present the keynote address on Sunday night. "Later in the evening, we again will feature the Jesse Bishop Crusaders, the singing group that proved to be a highlight on last year’s program," Mr. Edwards added.

"Several local congregations dismissed their Sunday evening services and attended the opening night program," stated Mr. Edwards. "Again, a metro-wide steering committee will help us promote the event."

As the week continues, speakers will draw lessons from the Patriarchs, with the theme God is With Us. The schedule will include classes and keynote lectures on the days the follow.

"Just like Sunday, we are striving for a full house on both Monday and Tuesday," stated Mr. Edwards. "The slate of speakers is outstanding, so we are confident that people will want to come and hear them."

Monday night’s program will feature Floyd Rose of Valdosta, Georgia. Rick Atchley of Richland Hills, Texas, will speak on Tuesday evening. Afternoon keynote speakers include Dallas Walker of Detroit, and Mark Frost of Trenton, Michigan.

Daytime textual classes will be led by Rex Hamilton, Dr. John Willis, Dr. Mark Shipp, and Dr. Mike Mass. Tim Kelly, Dr. Everett Hufford, Dr. John Mark Hicks, and Randy Gill will teach the practical classes. Dr. Helen Young will present a special series especially for ladies.

"We accomplished one of our major goals last year as the size of the crowd increased," noted Mr. Edwards. "This year we want to continue building the attendance while improving the quality of everything that happens during this special series."

Those outside of the metro area can obtain a copy of the program by calling the Development Office at 1.800.521.6010. Latest information about the lectureship is also available on the college web site at www.rc.edu.

40th Annual Bible Lectureship sets record

Opening with a capacity crowd, the 40th Annual Bible Lecture- ship began with a newly organized area-wide worship service. The program drew the largest crowd since the evening lectures began meeting in the auditorium of the Rochester Church of Christ. During the week, speakers from around the nation developed the theme, Faith Triumphant.

During the lectureship, the college honored individuals for long-term service to the church in the North. Those honored included Adelphie and Ruth Arden, Kiskiminetas, Pennsylvania, 41 years; Allen and Marie Barber, Kalamazoo, Michigan, 47 years; Dr. Vernon and Alice Boyd, Lathrup Village, Michigan, 42 years; Bob and Rachael Davison, Washington, Pennsylvania, 42 years; Herb and Charlotte Dean, Shelby Township, Michigan, 42 years; Monroe and Julia Hawley, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 52 years; Ben and Peggy Morton, Southgate, Michigan, 50 years; John and Leavie Phillips, Detroit, Michigan, 40 years; and Ron and Donna White, Lincoln Park, Michigan, 40 years.

41st Annual Rochester College Bible Lectureship
October 4-6, 1998

Donors to endowed scholarship programs at Rochester College and recipients of those funds gathered in the Gold Conference Room prior to the opening of the lectureship for the first annual scholarship dinner.

"Everyone thoroughly enjoyed their evening together," stated Elton Albright, associate director of development. "A scholarship becomes very personal when both the donor and recipient are able to meet each other."

"Those attending the dinner were delighted to meet the students who are benefitting from their investment," Mr. Albright continued. "In the weeks following the dinner, many received personal notes from the students in addition to a photograph that was taken at the dinner."

Currently, Rochester College awards about $20,000 per year from fifteen endowed scholarship funds. Once an endowed scholarship is established, only the interest is used to provide scholarships for worthy students.

Individuals can begin an endowed scholarship with a minimum donation of $10,000. "Once a fund is started, many donors continue to add to the fund, allowing the size of the scholarship awards to increase as the fund builds," Mr. Albright added.

In the months following the scholarship dinner, a relative of Royce Dickinson, for whom one scholarship is named, recognized the recipient of their family’s award in a brochure designed for prospective students. That situation would not have occurred without the introductions the scholarship dinner provided.

"The relative approached me with the brochure at the Metro Detroit Lectureship and proudly asked if I knew that the student in one of the pictures was the recipient of Royce’s scholarship," stated Cathy Ries, an administrative secretary. "She was so excited to know the student and realize that he is benefitting from the scholarship."

"We have been so pleased by the response to the dinner that we have slated it as an annual event," stated Mr. Albright. "We have already scheduled next year’s scholarship dinner for Saturday, October 3, and anticipate it becoming a highlight of the year for the participants."

Those interested in establishing an endowed scholarship fund may contact Doug Edwards, vice president for development, at 1.800.521.6010.
Area organizations launch campaign

Seven church-related institutions located in or near Michigan recently announced a cooperative effort to encourage estate planning. Built upon a national pattern when it comes to raising community awareness of the need for estate planning, surely we can cooperate to raise awareness among our church community."

As the campaign unfolds, the planning committee is supplying church bulletin inserts and providing speakers for special seminars on the need for estate planning. They also are hosting a series of free seminars on individual estate planning and offering one-on-one consultation for those interested in developing a personal plan. "We want people to know that charitable estate planning in its various forms is one of the best tools for preserving an estate from major tax depletion, enabling individuals to pass even more on to their heirs and favorite ministries," stated Mr. Clarke. "During the next half century, economic pressures on churches and church-related ministries certainly will increase," stated Dr. Ken Johnson, resident of Rochester College. "Our task is to help our churches to develop a stewardship program that can single-handedly resolve the economic crisis that congregations and church-related ministries will face in the next century. We have adequate resources in our church community to sustain all major ministries of the churches of Christ in the Great Lakes region if we plan and use our blessings wisely."

Anticipating further development of the campus of Rochester College, the Associates recently announced plans to construct a memorial plaza. Components of the plaza, including flag poles, benches, and bricks, will honor individuals and families named by donors to the project."We first became interested in developing a brick project after the Associated Women forChristian Education Conference was held on our campus in the summer of 1996," stated Lora Jones, chairperson of the project. "Representatives from other colleges told of their projects and this one immediately attracted the attention of our ladies."

The Associates commissioned Rob Clarke, a former student and owner of CBI Design Professionals, to design the plaza. In looking for possible locations, the Associates chose a spot near the new residence hall complex.

"When first built, the plaza will be located near the end of the new campus entrance road," stated Mr. Clarke. "When the road eventually circles the athletic fields, the plaza will sit at the bend of the road. It is also designed as a formal entrance to a riverside park that grew out of the residence hall construction project."

"So far, many of the larger items for the plaza have been reserved," stated Mrs. Jones. "However, we have nearly 2,000 bricks that are still available to donors. We do not intend for the plaza to honor just Associates, but anyone a donor chooses, including spouses, family members, alumni, students, teachers, and friends."

Two types of bricks are available for purchase. Regular 4’x8’ bricks range from $60 to $100, depending on the number of engraved lines. Larger 8’x8’ bricks, available for $250 each, allow for four lines of text. A number of 8’x16’ marble pavers also are available for $350 each. "It is important for donors to realize that gifts to this special project are tax deductible just like other gifts to Rochester College," noted Mrs. Jones.

"There are exciting times for Rochester College," stated Mrs. Jones. "We hope the project will enhance the campus atmosphere while honoring those who have worked hard to see the college develop to this point."

Margie Zarlinde, Mary Johnson, and Jeannette Schiele make angels.

Angel project blossoms

Beginning as a modest project to raise funds for the college, the assembly and sale of angel pins has blossomed into a major project within less than a year. Since last summer, Mary Johnson, wife of the college’s president, and several helpers from the Associates have sold over 6,000 pins.

“We saw our first angel on Bea Oberholzer at the Chicagoland Partnership Dinner,” stated Mrs. Johnson. “A pin was given to a mother who lost a son to a drunk driver, and now several in that community wear what has become known as the Andy Angel.”

“While wanting to raise funds for an affordable item, we were also looking for a way to promote Rochester College,” Mrs. Johnson continued. “The card with every pin names the college, so we have had a lot of nice discussions with people who are unfamiliar with what we do.”

“We are participating in several craft shows at high schools and community festivals,” stated Margie Zarlinde. “We put out information and talk about the college everywhere we go.”

“This project continues to grow in an amazing way,” noted Mrs. Johnson. “It has been so successful that we hope to raise enough funds through this project alone to completely renovate and refurbish the college cafeteria.”
Class celebrates with reunion cruise

Members of the class of 1982 made history last fall as they hosted a unique fifteen-year reunion. Participants enjoyed a Royal Caribbean cruise line to share a four-day adventure.

"Dan Isenberg and I served as officers of our class and we still got together on occasions," stated Jill (Dezierski) Vincent, owner of Travel Designs and organizer of the reunion. "Last spring, we realized that the fifteen-year mark for our class was approaching and no one had made plans for a summer reunion."

"As we talked, we decided to break new ground and put together a reunion cruise," Mrs. Vincent continued. "Even though this was a totally new concept, we had eight couples and two singles decide to participate."

"It was unique to build new memories with each other in a cruising setting," stated planner Dan Isenberg. "We had a lot of laughs during the dinners and with our karaoke singing, but also some very uplifting devotions that reminded us how lucky we are to be Christians."

During their cruise, the group visited the Bahamas and a private island owned by Royal Caribbean International. On the private island, class members played sand volleyball, snorkeled in the ocean, road banana boats, and barbecued on the beach.

"Our evenings together were a highlight of the trip," noted Mrs. Vincent. "On the first night we showed slides, the second night we looked at photo albums, and the third night we shared the experiences of our lives over the past few years. Everyone opened up and our hearts were touched. It was like Thursday night devotions three nights in a row!"

"The trip was so successful that we are already planning another for the year 2000," Mrs. Vincent stated. "Everyone was so pleased that they did not want to wait another five years."

Award granted at birth

New keepakes began appearing in baby books this spring as the Alumni Office began sending certificates for Gold and White Awards to those alumni submitting birth announcements for publication in the North Star.

"We want alumni to know that Rochester College is here to serve their sons and daughters," stated Larry Stewart, coordinator of alumni activities. "This memento emphasizes that fact as early in a child’s life as possible."

Second-generation students of the college began receiving Gold and White Awards in 1989. The award amounts to $150 toward first-year expenses for students with one parent that completed at least twelve hours, and $300 for students with two parents that completed at least twelve hours. Since 1979, over 200 second-generation students have enrolled at the college. They have represented such places as Arkansas, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Canada, Chile, Jamaica, and Nigeria.

"It is always thrilling to watch second-generation students interact with one another," stated Mr. Stewart. "They find that they have so much in common. Many, like their parents, have become best friends after enrolling." To submit a birth announcement, send the form on this page or register on the alumni section of the college’s web page.

Donors continued to rally in support of Rochester College during the 1997 calendar year, as 2,312 individuals and organizations provided a record $1,424,839 in gift income. For the third consecutive year and third time in college history, gift income passed the million dollar mark.

“The Lord has blessed the college with a substantial increase in funding,” stated Doug Edwards, vice president for development. “Because of the generosity of our friends and alumni, major improvements have been made for our students through gifts to operational programs and the Foundation for the future campaign.”

Nationwide, over 1,000 employers continued to match employee gifts during the past year Rochester College received matching gifts from fifty-three companies, totaling an impressive $137,669 of the college’s gift income.

“Rochester College salutes the good people and organizations listed on these two pages,” stated Mr. Edwards. “Their contributions help transform the campus and set the stage for our next campaign, which we hope to launch in coming months.”

Worth Repeating

Dear Dr. Johnson,

One of our elders, Richard Westlund, said wonderful things about Rochester College after attending the kickoff dinner for the Partnership Dinner. He has been encouraging the Plymouth congregation to support Rochester College.

My daughter now attends Rochester College. Another elder who attended Plymouth is possibly coming next year. I think it is very exciting to have two members attending the college.

One of the main reasons we moved back to Michigan after living in Florida for five years, was so Joanna could attend Rochester College. We are a close family and I wanted Joanna to attend a Christian college not far from home. It has been a wonderful year for Joanna.

It is very encouraging for me to know that Joanna’s future will probably be in Michigan. By having our young men and women attend a local college, we will more likely be able to keep these young people in our state to keep our congregations strong. We may even draw young men and women from other states and encourage them to stay and raise their families.

I am so happy with all the work you and Mary have done. I always touch Joanna’s heart that you and Mary know her by name.

Sincerely,

Denise Eronom
Enrollment and gift income increase

Based upon a board decision to change the name of the institution, Rochester College adopted a new name in July of 1998. Today, less than one year later, Rochester College continues to experience major increases in enrollment and funding.

“We no longer have to deal with the misconception that we are an unaccredited seminary,” stated Dr. Ken Johnson, president of the college. “We are now forging our reputation as a liberal arts college with a strong emphasis on Christian principles.”

“Our most recent publication for prospective students makes the boldest statement ever about our Christian emphasis,” stated Larry Stewart, director of public relations. “Before, we primarily let our name carry the message of who we are. This time we dedicated almost a quarter of the piece to our spiritual focus.”

“Everywhere I travel, I am impressed by the continued confidence that people have in Rochester College,” stated Dr. Johnson. “Our friends and alumni are excited by the progress they are seeing and continue to support us in a marvelous way.”

Enrollment soared to a record level during the fall semester, representing an increase of 24%. The trend and new records continued for the spring semester, when the college posted an impressive 32% increase over the previous year.

“Our application count is presently running about one month ahead of last year,” stated Phil Conner, dean of enrollment services. “At last check, we were also experiencing an increase in the average ACT score among applicants for next fall.”

“We are also excited about the interest we are seeing in areas further from the college,” stated Dr. Michael Westerfield, vice president for academic affairs. “In response, we decided to purchase and hang flags from all of the states and nations represented among our student body.”

During the current year, students from seventeen states and eleven nations enrolled at Rochester College. In addition to most Midwestern states, students came from as far as New Hampshire and Massachusetts in the East and California and Montana in the West. Others traveled from Southern states like Tennessee, Texas, and West Virginia. Canada followed only Michigan and Ohio with numbers of students.

“While student response to the college is our main concern, we have been blessed with additional financial support,” stated Doug Edwards, vice president for development. “For the third consecutive year, gift income set a record and passed the million dollar mark, allowing us to move forward with some important plans for the college.”

“Our year-end appeal generated a double-digit increase in gifts compared to the same time last year,” stated Elton Albright, associate director of development. “Most of our gifts are still coming from people who have supported the college for a number of years, demonstrating continued confidence in the college. Expansion of our donor base is now one of our major challenges.”

“The Lord has blessed us with an overwhelmingly positive response to the name change and remarkable progress in the past few months,” stated Dr. Johnson. “The coming year will be exciting as the college continues to achieve further important goals.”
